Although no alien is permitted to own land in Japan, medical students are showering the American Embassy in Tokyo over the forced exclusion of Japanese from ownership of land in the western states. The question, long a disputer of relations between the two nations, has again arisen as the result of difficulties between whites and Japanese in the rich Salt River Valley of Arizona. The United States, Secretary of State, Mr. Cordell Hull (top), Ambassador Salto (left) and Governor B. B. Moom have been given the serious problem to handle by such mass meetings of white farmers as that pictured above.

APPEAL TO LEAGUE

BRITISH AND ITALIAN AID HOPED FOR

Austrian Independence Must Be Safeguarded

LITTLE ENTENTE CONSENT ESSENTIAL BEFORE REVISION OF MILITARY CLAUSES

Paris, To-day.

A memorandum setting forth France's reason for appealing to the League Council against Germany's latest infringement of the Versailles Treaty, and a draft resolution for submission to the Council of the League, will be submitted at the Stresa conference by M. Laval, the French Foreign Secretary, and it is hoped here that the resolution may be presented to the League jointly by Britain, France, and Italy.

It is understood that the Italian Government recently requested preliminary information with regard to the Anglo-French views expressed at a meeting of the League Council for the organization of collective security and the maintenance of Austrian independence. It is believed that in the eventuality of re-arming, the small powers will also be alluded to.

Paris, like Rome, attaches the greatest importance to the safeguarding of the independence of Austria, but considers the consent of the Little Entente essential to a revision of the military clauses in the treaties with Bulgaria, Austria and Hungary.

It is understood that the French Government will propose a formula of European co-operation on such a basis as it is hoped to obtain an agreement with these three powers as well as with Russia.—Reuter.

OXFORD FAVOURITES FOR BOAT RACE

CAN CAMBRIDGE IMPROVE PROUD SEQUENCE?

DARK BLUES TO HAVE NEW BOAT

(By "Referee")

A RACE with 100 years of tradition behind it takes place to-day when Oxford and Cambridge Universities meet in their annual boat-race from Putney to Mortlake.

There is probably no other sporting event in the world which arouses so much enthusiasm and interest, and the event itself is annually witnessed by many hundreds of thousands of spectators.

With the best times of the two crews varying very slightly, indications point to one of the closest races on record with the odds, if any, on the Dark Blues, who are determined to break a long sequence of Cambridge wins.

Oxford recorded their last victory during the last 10 years in 1923, and two years later suffered their biggest defeat when their shell was water-logged and they lost by 30 lengths.

On March 29 Oxford rowed the full course from Mortlake to Putney in 19 minutes 31 seconds, although they were paced by four other crews in relays.

The following day, Cambridge had a full course trial, but their time was 41 seconds slower, which was attributed to the strong wind and rough waters.

There was a surprising development at Goring recently, where the Oxford crew are in training. For the boat-race, where P.H.S. Banks, the 14 st. smasher of oars, was left out of the boat when the crew went aloft for the first time. His place at No. 4 was taken by J. M. Couchman, who was transferred from No. 2. The vacancy in the latter position was given to R.M. de Winter.

Hope Resumes Place

When De Winter lost his place as stroke to D.R.B. Mynors, it was thought this his chances of a "Blue" had gone.

Hope resumed his place at bow after being out of the boat for the second outing.

The latest order of rowing when the crew took to the stretch was:—

The following have been the results of the Boat Race since 1923:—

| 1926 | Cambridge | 19 mins. 29 secs. | 5 lb. |

(By "Referee")

Hampden Park, Glasgow, will to-day be the scene of the final international soccer classic of the season when Scotland and England meet in their "needle" encounter for the championship. NAVY'S DOUBLE PROGRAMME

(By "ROVER")

A pointer to the Senior Shield result will be given on the Kowloon Football Club ground this afternoon when the finalists, the Police and South China "B," meet in the First Division of the soccer League.

On the Club ground the home team entertain the Recreio and are fielding a very strong side in the hope of making sure of the runners-up position in the Senior League table.

South China "A," who meet the East Lanes at Caroline Hill, will be without the services of Wong Wing, their skipper and custodian, who has left the Colony for Swatow on a business trip.

Lee Wai-tong, conqueror of Teddy Fincher in the Third Round, came within an ace of beating S. A. Rumjahn, three-times holder of the title, in the quarter-final of the Colony Lawn Tennis Singles Championship at the H.K.C.C. yesterday.

Leading 4-2 in the final set, he allowed a great opportunity to slip past him and was beat 3-6, 6-2, 6-8.

Lee gave a very polished display, and it occasioned some surprise, on yesterday's play, that he did not win. His net attack and cleverly

Good Inside Forward
It is a complete mystery why Pau never plays at forward, for he was one of the League champions' finest inside-men two seasons ago when South China snatched the championship from the Royal Artillery.

The Club, who have produced very inconsistent form throughout the season, have very surprisingly reached the runners-up position, but to keep there, they must win their four remaining games.

They have yet to play the Navy twice, the Fusiliers and Kowloon.

Athletic Losses
The Navy should experience no difficulty in obtaining both points from Kowloon, whom they entertain at

After much deliberation, Fus. Davies was suspended for 12 months, while Ip Lai-yee was debarred from playing for nine months.

WILL BRITAIN RETURN TO
OLYMPIC SOCCER?MILLER'S FOUR FIGHTS IN EIGHT DAYS

London, Feb. 28. WILL Britain send a soccer team to next year's Olympic Games in Berlin? This question is raised following the announcement that the International Olympic Committee, which met in Oslo, decided to reintroduce Association Football, providing no "broken time" payments are made to the players. Soccer was dropped from the Los Angeles festival in 1932 partly because of the "broken time" problem. Indeed, it was this question of payment for loss of work to amateurs which caused the Football Association to withdraw their team after the 1920 tournament. Whether the Olympic Committee's decision will tempt Britain to send a team is not certain. It removes the chief obstacle to our participation, but there are officials who hold that our Overseas commitments are extensive enough already.

GERMANY WANTS BRITAIN GERMANY will be most anxious for Britain to compete, however, and it is quite likely that the F.A. will yield to pressure. There is no real reason why we should not compete.

It does not follow that we should win the tournament. Amateur soccer in Germany and Scandinavia is now of a high standard.

Britain won the soccer title at the first two Olympiads—in 1908 at Shepherd's Bush, and in 1912 at Stockholm. In 1920, however, the F.A. team were unexpectedly beaten by Norway in the first round at Antwerp.

UNFORTUNATE FINAL THERE was an unfortunate ending to the Antwerp tournament. Belgium were awarded a victory after Czechoslovakia had left the field.

Czechoslovakia, it will be recalled, refused to play on a protest against the decision of the referee (the late Mr. John Lewis, of Blackburn), who had ordered off one of their men.

Since then the South Americans have entered into the argument. Uruguay won at Paris in 1924 and at Amsterdam four years later.

DIG MONEY-MAKER THE reintroduction of soccer at the Games is not surprising. For one thing, football is now the most popular game in Europe. No Olympiad would be complete without it.

For another, the income from the soccer tournament has, in the past, provided a surprisingly high proportion of the receipts.

I think the abolition of "broken time" will weaken a good many of the Continental countries.

With the chief obstacle to Britain's inclusion removed, will the F.A. send a team? Or, on the other hand, will soccer officials remember those "incidents" which have marred so many games and remain aloof?

HELD THREE CUP MEDALS YET another link with the early days of Soccer was severed, when Joseph Edward Sourbutts, a member of the famous Blackburn Rovers side which won the F.A. Cup three years running, died in Blackburn.

Sourbutts was in the 1884 final at the Oval when Queen's Park, the Scottish club, were beaten 2-1. That must have been a queer game—each side had a couple of goals disallowed.

Next year, when professionalism was officially recognised in the North, Sourbutts helped the Rovers to beat Queen's Park by 2-0 at the Oval. And again in 1888 he was a member of the side which defeated West Bromwich Albion by 2-0 in a replay at Derby after a goalless draw at the Oval.

BUSY WORLD'S CHAMPION FREDDIE Miller, the American holder of the world's featherweight title, must be reaping a rich harvest these days.

This non-stop boxer has had so many fights since he came to Europe that it is difficult to keep track with his record.

After defending his title in Spain, he came to England. He won in 10 rounds against Benny Caplan, and later he went by air to Belfast, where he beat Douglas Keenan.

To-morrow Miller fights Johnny Peters in Liverpool, and next Sunday he is in London again for another bout. Four fights in eight days!

BURNSIDE RETIRES BURNSIDE has run his last race. I learned that Sir Walter Gilbey has given his 12-year-old horse to J. Sirett, the jockey, to use as a hack.

Mr. Tom Cannon, the trainer, would have had Burnside but for the fact that he could do nothing with the horse as a hack. "He knew the Downs so well," said Mr. Cannon, "that when he saw the other horses galloping he would not stand still. So he has gone to Sirett."

No one could appreciate Sir Walter's gift more than Sirett. The jockey rode Burnside in most of his races, and became so attached to the horse that he named his house at Epsom after him.

WON £5,764 SIR Walter Gilbey bought Burnside, a great-hearted runner in long-distance handicaps, as a yearling for 580gns.

He won a dozen races of the value of £5,764. Nine of his successes were over the Newmarket course, where he was also placed ten times.

"I have been racing for nearly 60 years," Sir Walter once declared, "and Burnside is the one horse above all others for whom I have felt great affection and sentiment."

MISS ROUND'S HOLIDAY I AM glad to see that Miss Dorothy Round, the Wimbledon champion, is taking a complete rest from lawn tennis.

After her Australian tour Miss Round, who went to Singapore, very wisely decided to put away her rackets for three weeks. As a relaxation she played golf, and a very good golfer, she is.

After this holiday, however, Miss Round should return home fitter for a season in which she will defend her Wimbledon title.

NORTHAMPTON RUGBY'S LOSS AFTER next Saturday's home game with Bedford, Northampton Rugby Club will have to find another captain, as A. D. G. Matthews, the present skipper, is to retire.

Matthews, a professional cricketer with Northants, thinks that at the age of 30 he has had a long enough spell at "Rugger."

Taking up residence at Northampton in 1927, he was given a place in the Rugby team in the following season, and has been a first choice ever since. He has figured in the East Midlands team in three county championship semi-finals, and a year ago helped them to win their first final.

HOCKEY INCIDENT

Committee Of Three Appointed

The incident which occurred during the Radio K.I.T.C. Mamak hockey clash on March 24, when Fardman Singh, the Radio's right back, is alleged to have deliberately struck at Plato with his stick, resulting in the latter sustaining a fractured finger, had its sequel at the general meeting of the Mamak Tournament Committee yesterday afternoon.

After a short discussion it was decided that a special sub-committee be appointed to hold an inquiry into the affair.

The following is the committee: Messrs. A. A. Dand, C. Tyler, D. Brown, A. E. P. Guest, and Captain Foley.

Cox, at inside-left, scored the first goal for the Club, and the Fusiliers equalised through Dandy, centre-forward. A few minutes before the interval Cotter, the Club's leader, netted the winning goal.

Throughout the second half the Fusiliers had the better of the play, but wild shooting spoiled their numerous openings.

England's New "Caps"

Of the English eleven only three players, Hibbs, Bastin, and Brook have figured in international matches before.

Hibbs first played in 1929 against South Africa and on 19 subsequent occasions he has kept goal for England, appearing against Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Austria, Germany, Spain, Italy, Sweden and France in addition to his debut match against South Africa.

Brook was first "capped" in 1930 against Ireland and he has also played against Scotland, Wales, Sweden, France, Hungary, and Czechoslovakia.

Bastin's Record

Bastin, the England inside-left, made his international debut in 1932 when he was selected to play against Wales. He too has played against Scotland, Ireland, Italy, Sweden, Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

On the other hand Scotland are relying almost entirely on their old internationals, there only being three new "caps," Cummings, Simpson and Walker.

The teams are—
England: (Arsenal) and Haywood (Arsenal); Britton (Everton); Barker (Derby) and Bray (Manchester City); Gerdard (Everton); Bastin (Arsenal); Gurney (Sunderland); Westwood (Bolton); and Brook (Manchester City).
Scotland: Jackson (Chelsea); Anderson (Hearts); and Cummings (Partick); Macle (Hearts); Simpson (Rangers); and Brown (Rangers).
Napier (Celtic); Walker (Hearts); Gallacher (Derby); McPhail (Rangers); and Duncan (Derby).

KOWLOON DOCK'S GREAT EFFORT

(By "Skip")

LAWN bowlers are looking forward with pleasure and anticipation to the season which will commence on April 27. Development, ability and enthusiasm has been observed in all clubs.

I have watched the growth of lawn bowls in this Colony for many years, and I am delighted at its progress. I have seen some of the champions of the day throw their first bowl—I must admit in a very awkward and uncertain way. There is something amusing in the first efforts of anyone who takes up this game, but perseverance generally has its reward; and ultimately the budding champion is able to confine his shots to the limits of one rink only!

The marked ability which has developed so rapidly, and has levelled things so completely, in all the Clubs during the past year, is all for the good of the game. It would be a very wise man indeed, who could say with certainty who will win the Open Singles Championship or League Championship this year.

The season we are about to commence is fraught with the greatest of interest, and though I consider the League champions, the Craigen-gower Cricket Club, have still the talent to win League honours again, there is nothing absolutely certain.

The ability which the Craigen-gower players possess lies not only in their control of the game, governed by that live-wire, B. W. Bradbury, for whom I have the greatest admiration, but also in their unquestionable determination to win.

This Season's Danger

The Kowloon Bowling Green Club, I think, will offer the greatest opposition and their interest as regards the choice of players, will be safeguarded by Louis Gay and Maurice Henderson.

The Civil Service Club will also have something to say about the destination of his year's League Championship. I cannot allow this moment to pass without commenting upon the great record of my old friend, Arthur Grimmit.

Grimmit's Year

The year 1934 will always be remembered in bowling circles as "Grimmit's Year." Let me state, and without any fear of contradiction, that Grimmit was a finished and a deadly bowler many years prior to 1934. In 1928 he practically defied the Shanghai Interport team and enabled Hong Kong to win in Shanghai, for the first time.

Quite a number of old stalwarts are turning out for the C.S.C.C. including F. J. Jones, A. O. Brown, and S. Deacon, so their chances are good. I am sorry to say that I have heard a murmur that Grimmit and L. Luck will be absent from this year's bowling activities.

Taikoo's Proud Record

The Taikoo Club hold the Colony record for the greatest number of times they have won the League Championship. I would also say that Taikoo have had in their day the greatest bowlers this Colony has ever known, namely Ferguson, Wallace, MacLachlan, Wotherspoon, Hamilton, Scott, and Laing.

It is, therefore, with a certain amount of regret that I learn that Taikoo have decided to enter the Second Division of the Bowls League, for I feel sure that the Club still possesses that quality of excellence which distinguished it in the past. Wallace, MacLachlan, and Munro would make worthy skips.

K.D.R.C.'s Picky Effort

I congratulate the Kowloon Dock R.C. on their decision to carry on under very trying circumstances, for, although they have good bowlers in Lapsley, Gray, Cullen, Atkinson, Brown, Ramsay, McKelvie and Greig—equal in merit to anyone—their difficulty is often experienced in maintaining a full team.

A. Hyde-Lay, former Colony champion, has returned to the K.C.C., and this will afford pleasure and confidence to his fellow bowlers. I hear that he assisted a rink to win at Wanstead, playing No. 3 to Adam Holland, with Skinner No. 1 and Sheriff No. 2.

The K.C.C., I fancy, will make some of the other clubs sit up and take notice. Fraser—that unperishable wizard, who can steal success in the very face of failure—Silkstone, Overly and Teddy Fincher, are all players who can hold their own. Fincher, as a bowler, should emulate his successes in other fields of sport.

I shall deal with the possibilities of the remaining First League teams, and the teams in the Second League next week.

A Wise Procedure

The Hong Kong Lawn Bowls Association has made a wise decision in leaving the choice of players for the Wanstead annual bowls match in the hands of that capable bowler, Sam Randle.

The report that only six players turned up at Wanstead last year is slightly misleading; to my knowledge there were eight—Nish, Rapley, MacGown, Ramsey, Skinner, Holland, Sheriff, and Hyde-Lay.

POINTER TO SENIOR
SHIELD RESULT

Causeway Bay, while to-morrow they should perform similarly against the Athletic who, besides having lost several of their players through suspension, have permanently lost the services of Chan Chin-wo, "Darius" Chan, and Tan Ah-sai, who cannot spare the time to travel down from Canton.

The following is Rover's forecast of the favoured teams in capital letters:

The Nicest way—

Of Planning The Child's Meals In Hot Weather

LET us remember that little folks, too, are people with distinct likes and dislikes as to what they eat, especially in summer. No modern mother will doubt the wisdom of having the child eat because he enjoys his food rather than because he is coaxed and cajoled into taking proper nourishment; nor will she doubt that many of the once despised dishes can be so camouflaged as to be regarded as a treat.

Milk and fruit must become the chief items in the child's diet, but they alone will not suffice: the mother must not lose sight of the fact that nourishing and tempting foods which are not too heating, do form important parts in the day's diet. Cheese can be prepared deliciously as a substitute for meat. Cheese is a highly nutritious food—milk reduced to solid form. It contains a higher percentage of protein than meat, and as much if not more than eggs. Combine it then with other essential building-up foods like vegetables and nuts.

Baked apples and baked bananas possess good food value, and the latter supplies starch in a more attractive manner than bread. Many children go off eggs in summer-time but they must be introduced in novel ways on account of their iron content. Fish must be made attractive for summer meals and mayonnaise can be served in a variety of guises. Cold boiled fish or salmon can be served with layers of tomato and lettuce or other green leaves such as water-cress, cabbage heart leaves, shredded Brussels sprouts, and chopped celery.

Make your blancmanges with fresh fruit juices, the greater the variety in flavour and colour the better it will tempt jaded appetites. Eggs can be introduced into these without proclaiming themselves. The ideal drink for the increased summer thirst is barley water: it is healthy, refreshing and satisfying. A fresh lemon drink is also to be recommended.

Particularly study the tastes in luncheon sandwiches. These need not be a dull fare. If each child has (say) four sandwiches for lunch never have them all with the same filling. Make each one different, two savoury and two sweet. Many sweet fillings, such as chopped dates, are highly nourishing. The child's interest in opening up the lunch packet will repay the extra work.

Here are some suggested menus:

Breakfast

Ripe banana
Cereal and cold milk
Buttered toast and piece of sweet milk cheese
Nuts and raisins

Lunch For School

Three brown bread sandwiches filled with meat extract and watercress, tomato and sliced egg, lemon curd and chopped nuts.

Two small scones with butter and jam.
Dates stuffed with almonds.
Bottle of orange juice.

Supper

Cold chicken
Cheese and Spinach en Casserole
Mashed potatoes
Lettuce or some fresh green salad
Milk jelly and stewed fruit.

Cheese and Spinach en Casserole consists of: 1½ lbs. raw spinach; ½ lb. cheddar cheese; 1 teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon pepper; 1 cup milk; 1 cup buttered bread crumbs; bacon strips.

Heat the milk in a double boiler to boiling point. Add the diced cheese and seasoning, beat with an egg-beater until the mixture is smooth. Have the spinach cooked and drained. Stir the

Share Reductions

TWO of you together can do some good reducing; and at the same time build supple limbs and turn sharp corners into curves. So get a friend to join you; it adds to the determination and the fun. And when you've decided what time shall be devoted to your exercises keep each other strictly to it.

And a little about the diet: no more cream buns or cocktails, unless its tomato juice of course. Tomato juice is rich in vitamins and will do good things to your skin too. Orange juice too will lessen hunger without adding weight and is an excellent substitute for coffee. Fruits and salads and vegetables, brown bread, cereals and crisp toast; but cut out cakes and nuts and sweets.

Here's an exercise you can do with your companion when you can arrange to meet. Sit back to back on the floor, with hands clasped behind the head, and legs stretched out in front. Now imitate a see-saw—one presses backward, the other resists the pressure but bends forward. Then reverse. Don't do it too quickly, for the muscles benefit in resisting the pressure: it's good for tummies and seats. And of course don't do your exercises in any but the lightest of tunics, or your bathing costume will do very well.

Now put on the gramophone and try some rhythmical high kicks. You'll enjoy it. Clasp each other firmly round the waist and kick as high as you can in time to the music; or go up in degrees from a little kick to one as high as you can get. Then try round kicks: first kick the leg up in front, then, holding it at the same level, bring it round to the side and down. Then try side kicks; your hands on your hips and out—like two of Cochran's chorus! But wait till your wind has improved before you try any more.

Afternoon Snack

Mixed fruit salad
Sponge rusks and jam

If fruit salads are made in small, individual dishes children will often prefer this in the afternoon heat to the conventional tea and cake.

Dinner

Boiled fish and parsley sauce
Butter beans and spinach; or raw grated carrot with mashed potatoes
Fruit blancmange with lemon sauce

Papaya

As you see there is no need to force the child to eat food distasteful to it. Every child likes certain foods that are nourishing and the enterprising mother can find all manner of attractive ways to serve a balanced diet to the most exacting little appetite.

Aurelia's

Mayo's

Mode Elite

DON'T imagine that your silhouette will be everything this summer! Important as it is, the details you trim it with will be more important still.

Just take evening clothes, for instance. Add a pleated net or lace shoulder cape with a high ruffle tied up with taffeta ribbon; or a pleated frill oforgette held in place by velvet bows tying over each shoulder and round the neck for a summer wrap and you will automatically look 1935. Or you can plan a little loose cape of chiffon or lace lined with taffeta and completed by a small hood. And the more "kitteny" your taffeta bows, and the higher your fluffy frills the better.

Shoes, in harmony with the new dance frocks, appear in velvet, in pleated moire and crepe-de-chine, in jazz brocades, and in gold and silver kid cut on extreme sandal lines, and are very cool to wear.

Jewellery is delightfully barbaric, at night as it is in the day. Clip-on earrings are now so large that they cover the entire lower half of the ear, following the line of the flesh in shell shapes, spirals, and whorls. Bracelets, to match dress clips and buckles, are simulating old Egyptian and Indian designs. They are made in beaten brass and chased silver and are worn two or three at a time on one arm.

All the little fripperies that women love to collect for best occasions, such as chiffon handkerchiefs and stockings, downy powder-puffs, cigarette cases, gloves, lipsticks and pouchettes are more enticing than ever this year. The latest flap-jacks for evening are cut entirely of glass. There is also the most compact vanity case, cigarette case and lighter combined which is just made for the tiny evening bag. It is the vogue to wear your initials in French paste or dull beads encrusted on the flap of your evening bag.

Belts are shaped into the waist again, and you can fasten them with hooks or thongs, or clamp them together with bits of steel or wood. Light summertime motifs can be used as decorative buckles: I saw one the other day in the shape of a jaunty music note.

And when you go to choose your summer hats, however much you want a bonnet with a spotted chin bow, or the "Angel Child" cross between a halo and a bonnet, study yourself well with the aid of a full-length mirror before deciding finally. And just remember—a wide brim, takes inches more from the height of a small woman, a halo thickens both the neck and the figure of a woman already tending to weight; and a creeky little shape with a scoop in front makes the woman with the hollow back appear to bulge even more at the most unfortunate place.

Then there are hats that demand shorter skirts and low shoes, and hats that are going to look foolish (as most of this season's) if you wear anything but high heels and a long skirt.

And now, go safely and enjoy the feather trimmings and the metal rings!

For The Fashionable Real Lace.

It is wise to wash such delicate articles as real lace, georgette, organdie, and the like, in a wide-mouthed glass jar filled with warm soapy water and borax, or a weak solution of ammonia water. Do not rub with the hands or use much soap. Just shake the articles in the jar, changing the water until they are clean. If stiffening is required, use a little rice water or dissolved sugar.

Iodine Stain On Linen.—Iodine stains can be removed from bed linen by saturating the stains in cold water and then covering them thickly with bicarbonate of soda. Tarnished Gilt.—A gilt clock which has become tarnished should be dusted well, and then wiped with a soft cloth wrung out of warm water and ammonia, using one part of ammonia to nine parts of water. Dry thoroughly and polish lightly with a duster.

Worn Furniture.—A little white of egg painted on the worn part of leather furniture will completely prevent further wear at that spot and will greatly improve the appearance. If the leather is tinted and the colour has worn off, paint it with water paint to match before putting on the egg white.

Scorch Marks.—You can deal with them if they are not too stubborn. Make a paste of raw onion and fuller's earth, or of bicarbonate of soda and water. Apply a little, leave to dry, then wash off. A surface of scorch on silk will react to glycerine and borax spread over and left for an hour. Then sponge and wash in clear water.

Milk Jug.—Always rinse milk jugs in cold water after use. Hot water hardens the albumen on to the sides of the jug, and this will tend to turn fresh milk sour when the jug is filled again.

Impressions

I read in the papers last week that the Governor of New York State has signed a bill abolishing breach of promise suits on the ground that they have been made instruments of blackmail. Those who know the abuses of this law can only receive the news with satisfaction. But this is only one of a series of legislations passed all over the world that cause us to reflect.

Before the war woman was treated with what seems to us an old-time chivalry; and it was thought that she was incapable of doing ordinary industrial work. The rich, of course, have never cared for their women to work at all. But during the war woman appeared and showed herself quite capable of doing things successfully, to the general astonishment. They organised themselves; they were to come into their own, and the world was to be all the better for it. But although they have received the vote, the right to practice most professions and a general 'emancipation,' perhaps the measure given with one hand is taken back with the other.

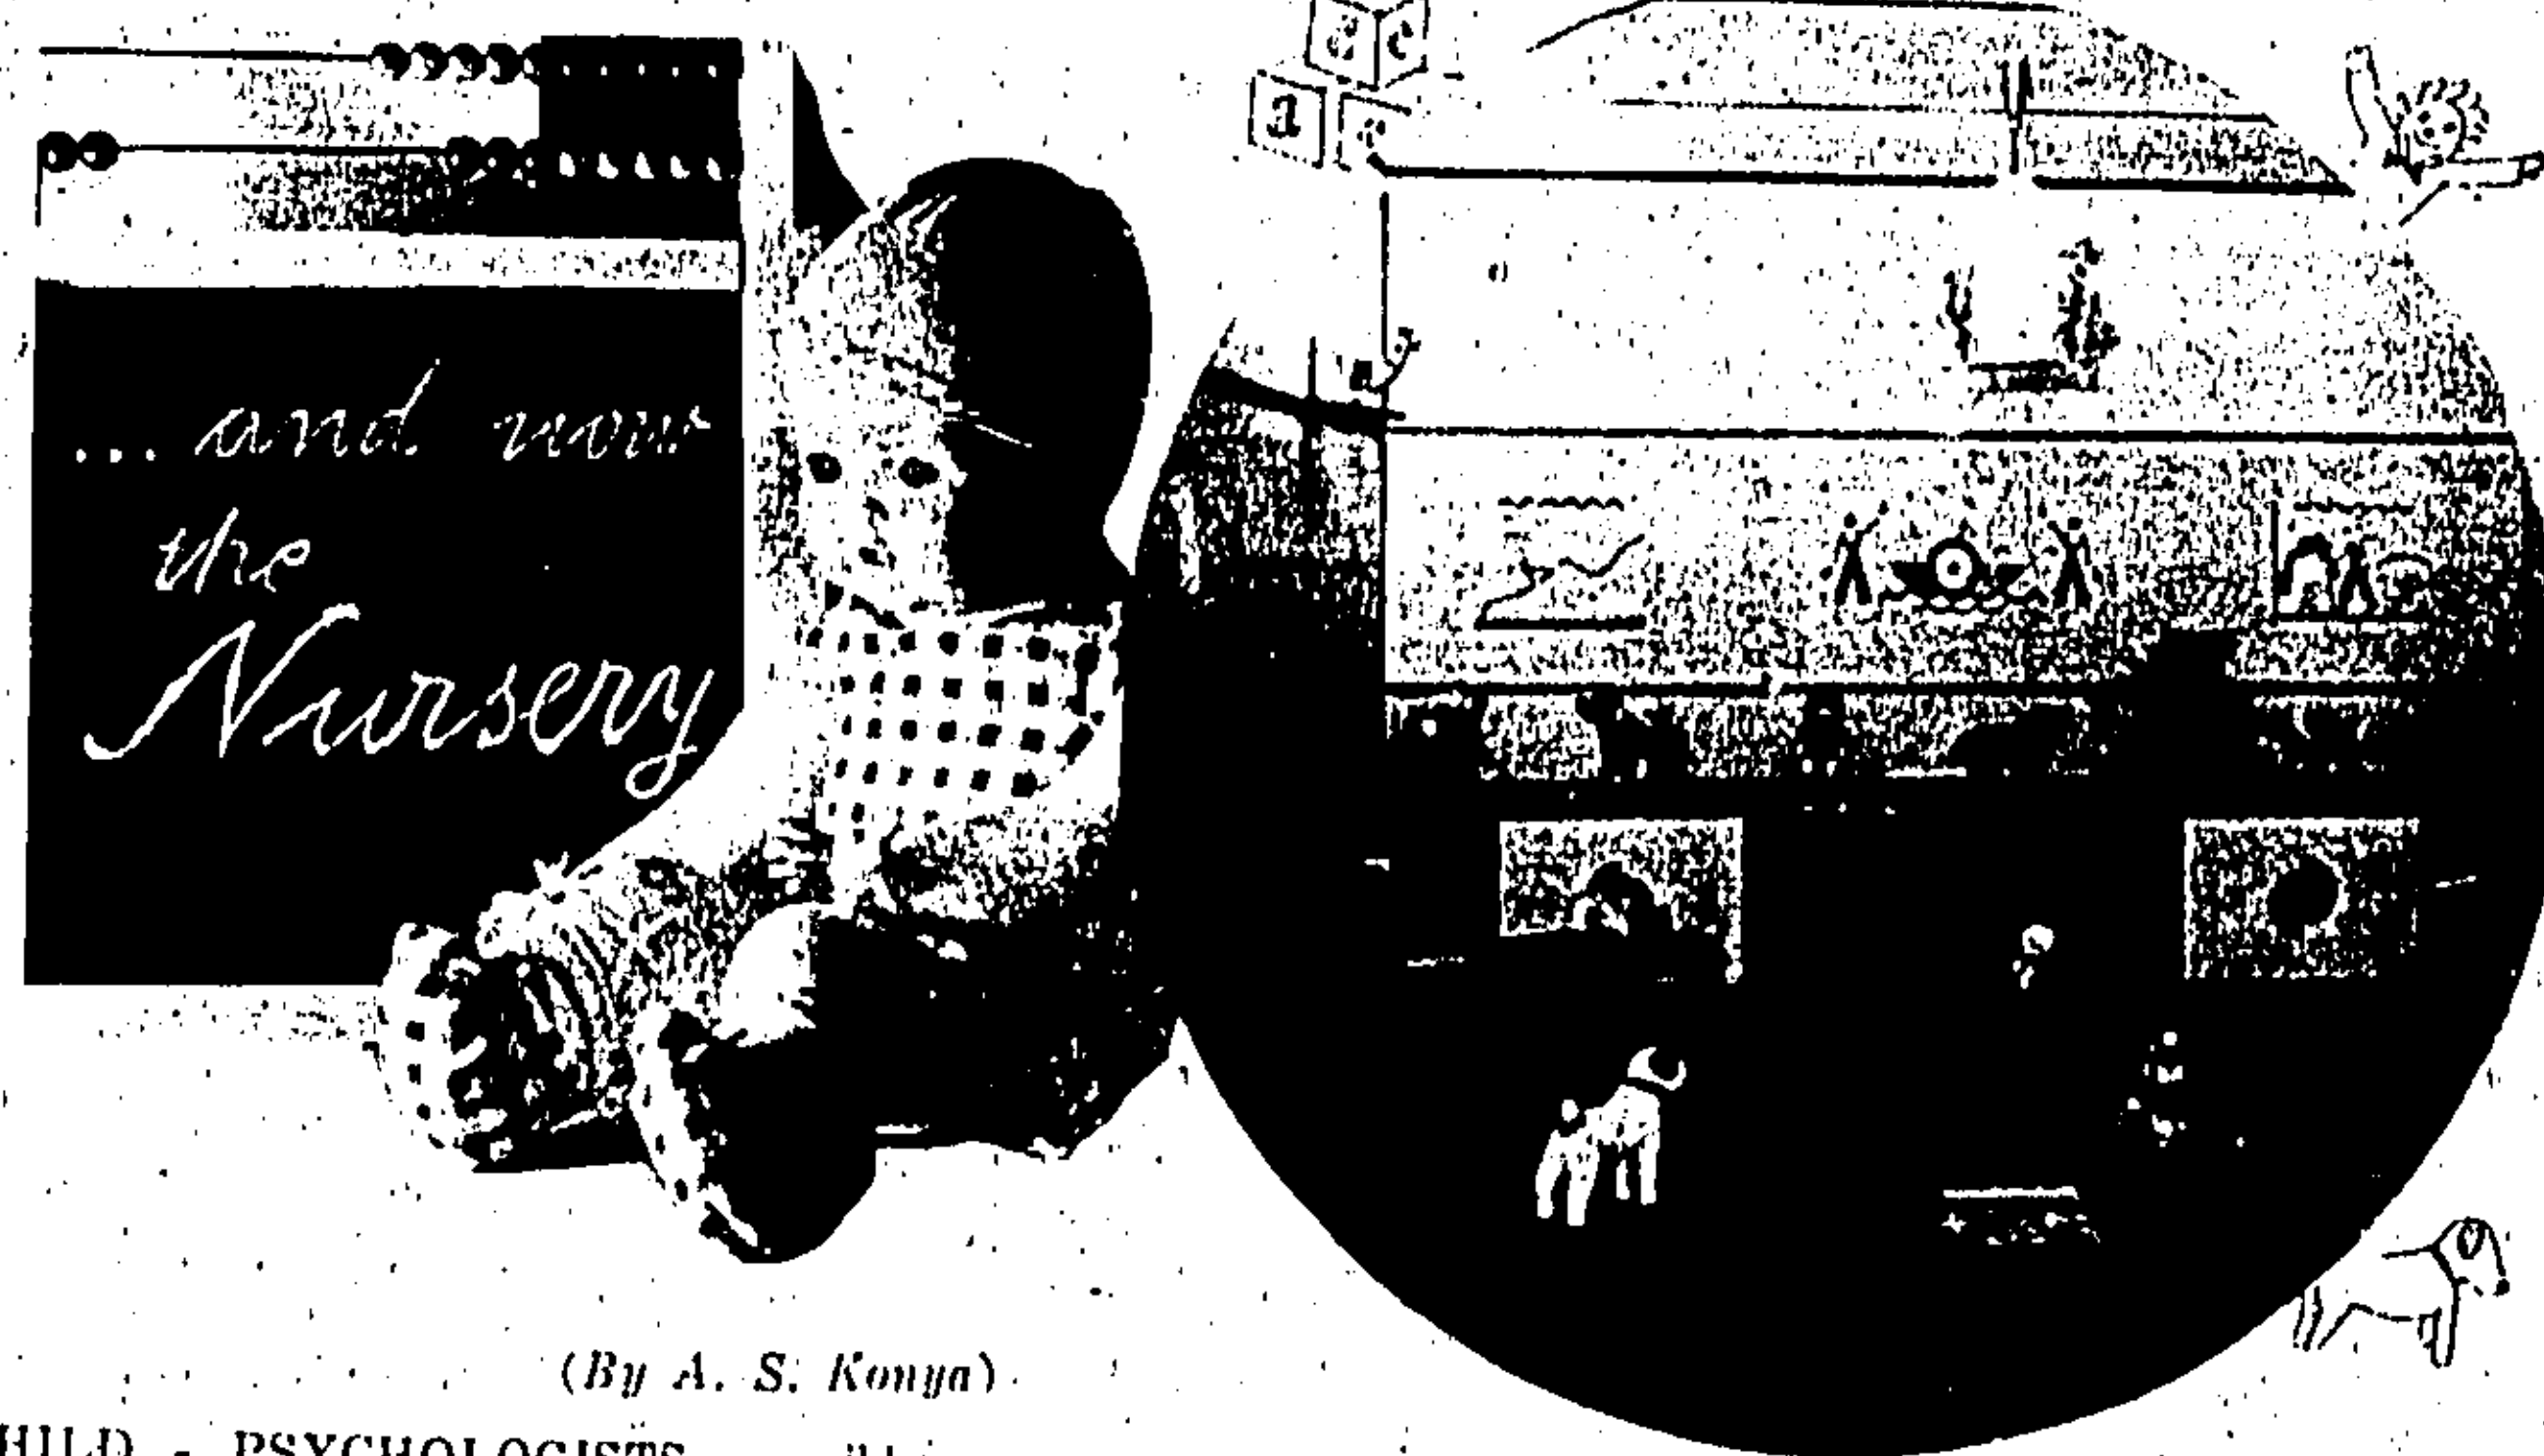

Women are no longer the pets of the law; but have rather come to be regarded as on an equal footing with men. Although this may often be a good thing, it must be remembered that the majority of women workers receive favour only where their present lack of organisation can be taken advantage of. And in such cases they are paid but a half to two-thirds of what a man would receive for the same work. The mass of younger women still regard work as an interlude preceding marriage, and so seldom put into it the man's ambition and seldom rise to executive positions. They are indeed often debarred altogether from competing for such positions; so there is still a general belief in the inferiority of women's work. To get little more than half a man's salary means in reality that she has but that percentage of his freedom and his confidence.

But, though women have without doubt considerably enlarged their scope, the fact remains that there are still occasions when she cannot act in the same way as a man is capable of doing. And what special consideration she did have is gradually disappearing from the law books. She is being given a misleading status in law above the degree of 'equality' she has obtained, and the compensatory balance does not appear to be on her side.

Woman is almost abruptly exposed. Tradition is still strong enough for the business woman to feel the general atmosphere of antagonism; she is expected to live more timidly, and there is still considerable doubt as to the possibility of her emotional stability. The business man is free from these prejudiced opinions. But the majority of women are still economically dependent and these women are educated only in the fine art of individual spending; of industrial and economic functions they are, by virtue of their position, ignorant. Are they capable then of facing a legal status that has ceased to regard them as parasites?

CHILD - PSYCHOLOGISTS and educators have so often impressed upon us the importance of the environment in which a child grows up that their conclusions are in danger of becoming platitudes.

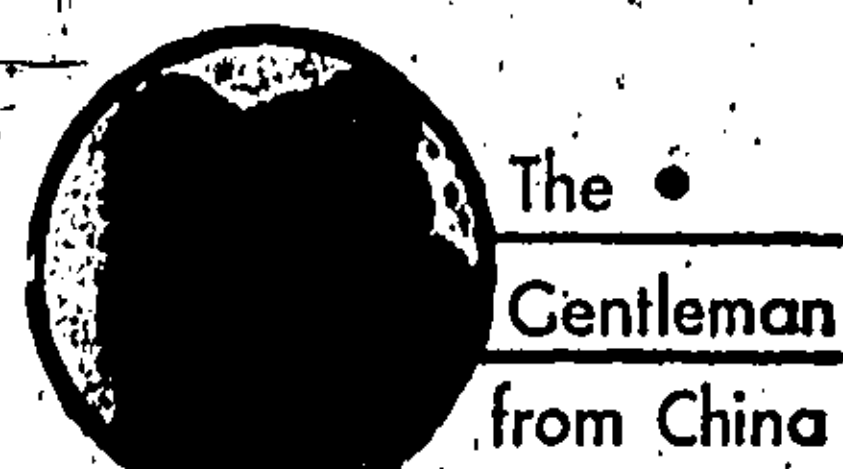

All agree that the impressions of the child's earliest and most susceptible years will leave the deepest mark on his character. Granted this, and taking into consideration the peculiar conditions existing in Hong Kong (lack of playgrounds, the great number of rainy days which force the children indoors, the excessive heat) it is very important that the nursery should be not just another room in the house, but carefully planned. How should the innocent parent, who is neither a child-psychologist nor interior-decorator go about it? Here are a few points to observe.

A nursery should be airy and bright; everything in it should inspire cheerfulness. Select, if possible, a corner room. Dark and badly ventilated rooms will effect the health of children even more than they will adults. The walls should be bright and colourful, with pictures, or, if possible, painted and stencilled wall decorations of simple style which appeals to children. It is a delightful pastime to allow the children to decorate the walls of their own room. If proper guidance is available, they can paint directly on the wall with poster colours, otherwise on sheets of paper. In every nursery there should be a black-board with an ample supply of coloured chalks.

The furniture should be carefully selected. It should be easy to clean and of as simple construction as possible, with plain surfaces and no sharp corners on which the children can hurt themselves. Colours should be lively (within 'aste'), so that the children can find pleasure in them. The furniture in a nursery should be of light construction—a sort of toy, as children like to use chairs and small tables in their play.

Nursery designed by the author in shades of pale green. Note the ceiling light in the shape of a merry-go-round, and the toy cupboard with built-in blackboard.

WHEN you take your dog out walking, both ends of the leash ought to feel temperamentally akin; you must be people of the same type or the partnership will not be an understanding one. But then you may be interested in other facts about the Chow Chow as a pet and friend.

He is a first-class watchman, for, as he is not constantly yapping, when he barks he really has something to say. If he's well trained, he's good with children; indeed, being somewhat of a mandarin, he can even teach them manners. He is a product of Northern China; and the blue Chow is China's sacred dog. They are dignified dogs, and unsocial with strangers, though, when handled properly, they are courteous with people outside the family. With those they love they are kind, considerate, and extremely obedient; quiet and unobtrusive around the house.

To be sure, a Chow is stubborn, as he has a mind and judgment of his own. He thinks and studies the human character; but few humans understand this aloof and self-possessed Oriental.

His colours are his own—the red of ancient lacquer, ebony-black, a dusky blue with a tongue black in startling contrast, a yellow and white which is rarer. His scowl, too, is his own, formed by the wrinkles on his forehead—does that account for his amazing stories told about his uncanny intelligence? No! The strange part of it is, they're nearly always quite true. In choosing from the little Teddy Bears, look for a short back, dense coat, good bone, short feet and well twisted tail—and try not to hug this lovely young pet to excess!

Baby Lore

TAKE care of the new baby in the most harmonious and happy way. Perhaps these few ideas that have grown out of mothers' experience will help you.

A handkerchief tucked inside the bonnet and resting against the inner cheek and side of the mouth, during baby's outdoor nap keeps his bonnet, coat or bunting sweet and clean.

Nine-inch squares made of soft cotton material are handy to have when bottle-feeding the infant. Any milk which might creep from the corner of the mouth can be quickly wiped with one of these cloths and so keep his smock fresh. Immediately after feeding rinse baby's bottle with cold water and every speck of milk will vanish.

Sing to the baby when he has his bath: it becomes a joyous adventure for him. His smiles and gurglings will tell you how he loves it. And cut baby's fingernails while he sleeps so as to make it an easier task.

An individual aluminum egg cooker bought quite cheaply is excellent for heating baby's first vegetables. The water in the lower part prevents the food from burning and will also keep the food warm when baby eats.

Be extremely careful to hold a young baby in the correct manner. For the first few months the baby's head and back should always be supported by the arm. Probably the most comfortable way is to support the body on the palm and open fingers of the hand, allowing the baby's back and head to rest on the forearm of the same arm. The legs and feet can be supported by the other hand. When the baby is to be held on its mother's lap, it is a good plan to allow it to lie face downward. If there is a tendency for the back to sag downwards and the legs to drag it is well to place a pillow across the knees and allow the baby to lie upon the pillow.

BEAUTY DIARY

Face Value In Rainy
Weather And Otherwise

IT begins to rain—and powder and rouge take leave of their senses, leaving us, to say the least, unattractive. But at last a make-up has been found that will endure the wind and rain and allow you to arrive with the same loveliness as you set out with.

Elizabeth Arden's Protecta Cream is the ideal foundation, as it is quite impervious to water, and, while protecting the skin from exposure, gives it a velvety finish. You can mix it with a little skin tonic to thin it and then apply with a pad of cotton wool. It is in five different shades, too, to suit any complexion. But those who are troubled with an oily skin should use an astringent lotion as a foundation instead of a cream.

Helen Rubinstein's Sun and Windproof Cream is a sound protection for the very sensitive skin, and is invaluable in restoring delicacy and smoothness. And if your nose gets red out-of-doors use Elvira's preparation "Noshine."

Powder rouge is useless in bad weather. Elizabeth Arden's cream rouge, which is waterproof, protects the skin, giving it a lovely porcelain finish. Then Lechner makes an indelible lipstick which is waterproof, besides being fresh and nourishing. The Lenthier lipstick is quite safe, too. And, lastly, Helen Rubinstein makes a harmless and infinitely useful waterproof mascara. You'll find this make-up fluttering to your beauty on a rainy day.

Care for your face every day—it's a breathing, growing thing that you can shape and beautify through all your life. Cleanse your skin, keep it active and protect it. Each night there should be a thorough cleansing. Make a lather of a pure plain soap and warm water and, after rinsing thoroughly in warm water, turn on the cold tap and splash the face till it tingles. The water in Hong Kong is soft enough for even sensitive skins.

Then cleanse with cream. A cream that does the double duty of cleansing and nourishing can be used. The cream is applied with the fingers, the lotion with a piece of cotton wool. Smooth on gently, beginning from the chin and going up and out toward the temples, then across the forehead, round the nose, across the upper lip and round the eyes. The skin should not be rubbed hard. The cream left on for a few minutes to loosen the dirt, and then wiped off with a soft, clean cloth, paper tissue or cotton wool.

An active skin is invariably healthy and beautiful. Always be careful when applying soap or creams, the face can be helped up—or down. Your face is a part of your body, thus if your body is healthy and vigorous, your skin will show it. Eat plain healthy food and drink plenty of water. If your skin is over-oily avoid pastries and fried foods, but eat plenty of fruit, salads and vegetables. Protect the skin from extreme cold, hot sun, wind, grimy air and hard water. Use a powder that suits and pleases you in every way; don't mind a few experiments until you are sure you've found the very best.

"The Flirtation Walk"

Arthur Murray Shows New Dance Step

HERE is a chance to learn to dance the "Flirtation Walk" the new ballroom hit which has taken two continents by storm. The dance was invented by Arthur Murray, the famous American teacher of ballroom dancing, and named after the first military musical, "First National's" spectacular picture, starring Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler, which opens at the Central Theatre to-morrow.

The "Flirtation Walk" has the beauty of simplicity and grace and lends itself so readily to individual interpretations that it is likely to share the popularity in Hong Kong that it has done elsewhere.

By following the instructions closely, and studying the pictures, the easy steps and correct style can soon be mastered.

"NO WAR IN THIS GENERATION"

Bishop Hall States His Opinion

LEAGUE OF NATIONS, HONG KONG BRANCH

"There will be no major war in this generation. That is my considered judgment and I must defend it," said the Rt. Rev. R. O. Hall, Bishop of Victoria, during his presidential address at the annual meeting of the Hong Kong branch of the League of Nations, which was held at the Helena May Institution last night. The Bishop continued by saying that it was useless to try to prevent war merely by repeating to ourselves "There will be no more war."

There were three important factors conducive to peace: international idealism, religion, and economic necessity. Of the three economic necessity was the most effective.

Election of Officers

The following officers were elected: President, the Rt. Rev. R. O. Hall; vice-presidents, Chev. J. M. Alves, the Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall, Professor Robertson, the Hon. Sir William Shenton and the Hon. Dr. S. W. Ta'o; Hon. Treasurer, Dr. Y. S. Wan; Hon. Secretary, Mr. S. V. Boxer; Asst. Hon. Secretary, Miss Griffin; Hon. Auditor, Mr. W. N. The Sterling Fund Vote

A vote of 413,119 dollars in connection with the depreciation of sterling, which was approved by the Finance Committee after the meeting of the Legislative Council last Thursday, may well cause a certain amount of bewilderment to others than the Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall, who asked for further information. It is, of course, only a bookkeeping entry, and does not imply any expenditure or loss of money, and it is made according to Treasury regulations under which the value of sterling balances has been written up during previous years. Nonetheless it is a quaint reminder of the insubstantial nature of the financial fabric as far as our surplus funds are concerned. The plain man naturally wonders why in a financial year in which the rise in the dollar made a nominal addition to the Colonial revenue of two million dollars, a half million should have to be written off for depreciation. The fact, of course, is that the rise in our dollar is not entirely due to the American purchases and the consequent dearth of silver, but partly to the less obvious cause of the fall in the international purchasing power of the pound sterling. The former condition assisted us in making payments, the latter detracted from the value of the passive funds held in London. What then, so far as Hong Kong is concerned, is meant by the depreciation of sterling? The only answer possible is that it means that one pound sterling will buy less gold bullion. The old statutory ratio was seventy-six shillings and eightpence to the ounce, and it is now one hundred and forty-five shillings and ten pence, which is equivalent to the price in American dollars and cents which would be given by the United States Treasury. Two reflections suggest themselves if we allow ourselves to consider these facts. The first is that our connection with sterling is so close that we cannot get away from it; and the second is that we are only deceiving ourselves if we imagine that we are in possession of an independent standard, or on a silver basis. We are really, at one remove, just as much on a gold basis as the rest of the world. The net result of all the unsettling experiments of the last ten years has been to put the world on a gold bullion standard instead of a gold coin standard.

The present temporary fall of sterling is purely artificial, and the first step towards a recovery of international trade will be the discovery by the general public of the fact that the variations in the value of their money are not caused by any law of Nature, but by certain definite persons and by voluntary actions which could easily be restrained. While the cost of an ounce of gold in New York is fixed by law, the President has the option of raising it by another ten per cent, and this leaves an uncertainty which neutralises the advantage that might be conferred on trade by a fixed value; also if an alternative payment in gold be bargained for, there is no assurance that such a contract could be enforced in a Court of Law. The consequence is that the price of an ounce of gold in Paris is three shillings higher, as represented in the franc exchange. It might be thought that this would lead people to refrain from buying francs; but that tendency was neutralised by a rash panicky people who had funds in London to transfer money to Paris. Incidentally this short-lived panic is interesting as an example of the use for such purposes of the new opportunities afforded by Wireless. All the Continental centres drew money from London after a very exaggerated version of the National Wireless which corresponds to the English B.B.C. of what is known as "the pepper scandal," a comparatively small affair that was said to involve Cabinet Ministers on the analogy of the Stavisky disclosures; it was emphasised that the Chancellor of the Exchequer had said that "there was no immediate prospect of a return to the gold standard," which was mere truism; and it was further stated that a General Election was pending which would have disastrous effects. The unscrupulous inventors of these rumours caused fluctuations which prompted the refusal of a loan to Belgium that had been arranged, and the consequent devaluation of Belgian currency, and a spreading wave of loss to Switzerland and Italy. Never in the history of the world has it been possible for a group of speculators to do so much damage to people that have no concern in their operations. It is deplorable enough that they should be able to inflict loss on other "gold countries," but it is absurd that they should be able to affect daily transactions in Hong Kong.

Vague optimism is merely irritating. Every month transfers more power from responsible Governments to irresponsible dealers who know no law or principle except the principle of quick profits. Unless the Governments can manage to get together and bring these wreckers under control they will lose their hold over their peoples.

EX-KING'S PRIVATE FORTUNE

Ex-King Prajadhipok is not likely to find himself in financial straits owing to his abdication. He sacrifices a Civil List of about £300,000 a year, but his personal fortune, I hear, is unaffected. It is estimated at $1,000,000. Until 1925, the year following King Prajadhipok's accession, rulers of Siam had no Civil List. As absolute monarchs, they dipped into the Treasury according to their requirements. These might be anything up to $500,000 a year. The fixing of the Royal Civil List at the equivalent of £300,000 was part of the general scheme of economy under which the number of Court officials was drastically reduced. The ex-King and Queen of Siam are hoping to make their new home at Nyon, on the Lake of Geneva.

ISSUING HIS OWN PASSPORT

Lord Curzon, as Foreign Secretary, issued a passport to himself. Mr. Herold Nicolson, who was then his Private Secretary, on their journey to the Lausanne Conference took charge of the party's passports, desiring to solve a problem which had often assailed me, namely, whether Lord Curzon made out a passport for himself. It was there all right—"We, George Nathaniel," and then his name written again in the blank space. Mr. Nicolson was amused at this evidence of what he calls "official Narcissism."

WHERE EAST AND WEST DO MEET

SIAM'S FRIENDLY AND CHARMING PEOPLE

MUTUAL RACE EQUALITY WORKS
PERFECTLY

(By Patrick Balfour)

SIAM is somehow a whimsical country; whimsical by repute because of its association with twins, cats, illericks and white elephants, but whimsical also in fact because the traveller here, as in Wonderland, encounters nothing that is altogether expected.

For instance, he finds no roads; but at one end of the scale canals and water ways providing the sole means of communication, and at the other, entirely skipping an era of transport, the most luxurious service of wagon-lit expresses in the East, drawn by the latest Diesel engines.

He finds an aerodrome with three weekly services to Europe, but no road to it. He finds one section of the population living in floating Norah's Arks, and the other in palaces composed, to all intents and purposes, only of innumerable and brilliantly-coloured roofs.

He finds names which are spelt in one way and pronounced as something quite else (I met, for instance, a Prince Gádhaharabodi who assured me that his name was pronounced Katatawn). He finds a business community of such polyglot nationality and religion as to observe no fewer than 20 Bank Holidays in the year, excluding Sundays.

He finds that the white elephant is pink.

But above all, he finds a country where East is West and West is East and the two (or perhaps he should say "the twain") meet all the time.

Sturdy Independence

It is indubitably this latter phenomenon which has contributed in some measure to Siam's present little political difficulties. On the other hand, it is as indubitably the case that of all Oriental countries she has achieved the least incongruous compromise between the warring elements of the two hemispheres.

Easterner meets Westerner in Siam in the happiest manner. Possibly this is because the introduction is effected on a basis of mutual racial equality. Siam was never an underdog nation, and to-day she preserves a sturdy independence between the imperial possessions of Great Britain on the one hand and of France on the other.

It is impossible not to be struck by this atmosphere of independence the moment you set foot in the country—and very refreshing it is. For once you are neither a sahib nor a tuan, nor a big white chief of any denomination, but simply a jolly sort of human being with a different complexion from the normal.

No "Complexes"

The Siamese are a bright, friendly little race, quick-witted, full of life and invariably good company.

Nowhere else in the East could such an institution as the Bangkok Sports Club exist. A magnificently appointed place, with tennis and squash courts, a swimming pool, a golf course and even a racecourse of its own, it throws open its door to Europeans and Siamese alike—and even to half-castes. Nor would it ever occur to either that such eclecticism was at all extraordinary. Colour-consciousness is virtually unknown in Siam. The Siamese suffers neither from racial inferiority nor from its obverse; allment, that truculent, self-conscious "I'm as good as you are" superiority so common in the East.

Here one sighs at the thought of the Anglo-Indian clubs of Bombay and Calcutta, and is tempted to the conclusion that East and West are temperamentally incompatible only on a basis of social inequality.

Free from the compulsion to absorb European culture, the Siamese proceed to absorb it with avidity. Among the cosmopolitan-commercial population of Bangkok the Danes predominate over other Europeans. But it is to Great Britain that the country turns for educational inspiration: its schools are run on English lines and English is its second language. Siamese princes at Eton are a commonplace. They are no strangers, either, to the British Navy.

East And West

With the English language and education, the Siamese acquire English tastes, notably a love of sport. There are several golf courses in the country, besides that at Bangkok; tennis and boxing are popular, and some of the Siamese are first-rate light-weight jockeys. Here is a race very different from the lethargic Malay across the border.

The quaintest instance of English influence which I saw in Siam was at Bang-Pa-In, the Royal Summer Palace. Here King Chulalongkorn, father of the abdicated Prajadhipok, who visited England in Queen Victoria's reign, was pleased to build himself a Buddhist vat, or temple, but in Victorian Gothic style.

The Buddha reposed uncomfortably in the midst of an acutely Gothic veranda of varnished mahogany, surrounded by windows of crude stained glass, while the exterior of the building was like a London suburban church of the worst possible architectural epoch.

The good suburbanite would have been horrified by the adaptation of his pet ecclesiastical style to such heathen usage, in a landscape where water buffaloes wallowed in rice fields and sampans bore half-naked Siamese up and down the river.

As a rule, however, the fusion of East and West in Siam strikes no such incongruous note as in other Oriental countries. Bangkok is half Chinese-hovels and half commercial buildings in the modern German style. Yet it has a brisk integrity of its own.

The Grand Palace

In the night clubs Siamese princes in tuxes and gay-coloured alien skirts dance to the latest American tunes; but it seems in no way odd that they should be doing so. European habits suits the Siamese people. Their adoption of them savours nowhere of imitation, but has helped to create a highly individual race.

for STAMP COLLECTORS

By A. E. L.

THE collecting of French colonial stamps has become a favourite pastime among many general collectors and they have formed worth-while collections of these interesting stamps. The large size pictorials are quite colourful and portrays scenes from small and out of the way places.

The numerous French colonies dot the South Seas and the coast of Africa for the most part and the stamps from these colonies portray the life and habits of the natives. On the stamps of the northern African colonies we find the mosques and minarets playing a prominent part, and the scenes of Algeria, Morocco and Tunis bring memories of piratical seas and of the Sahara Desert with its roving herds of Arabs and Moors.

AUSTRIAN ARCHITECTS
AUSTRIA has portrayed her most prominent architects on a series of stamps of six values. Anton Pilgrim is shown on the 12s violet, J. B. Fischer, von Ertach on the 24s pale violet, Jakob Prandtauer on the 30s red, A. von Siccardburg and E. von Noll on the 40s brown, H. von Ferstel on the 60s ultramarine and Otto Wagner on the 64s green.

FAMOUS CORSICAN BANDIT

Andre Spada Tried For His Life

EMBARRASSED BY QUESTION ABOUT A LADY

In the incongruous setting of the lobby of the municipal theatre at Bastia, Corsica, the trial took place of Andre Spada, once "king" of the Corsican bandits—whose capture two years ago ended an 11-years career of violent crime.

Great excitement was caused in the crowded court when the judge read a letter to Spada from an Englishwoman whom he had entertained in the maquis (bush) a few years ago, after she had read the bandit's life story in a magazine and sought his acquaintance.

The judge said that Spada had apparently proved a most genial and generous host, and wanted to know how far the friendship between Spada and his visitor had gone.

"I Seek No Pity"

No one would think to look at Spada—a man of mild appearance, and medium build, with a big moustache—that he is accused of killing, during the time he was in hiding in the bush, six people, including three gendarmes, and of wounding 14 others.

Spada, who pleaded guilty, declares that since he has been in prison he has found the comfort of religious conversion.

When the judge told him that it was a fraud on his part to pretend to have become pious, the bandit replied:

"I do not seek for pity. I confess to my crimes and I want only to make my peace with Heaven."

It is noteworthy that the judge had thought it expedient to have Spada medically examined before the trial to ascertain that he is not insane. For this purpose he was sent to Paris, where he was declared by alienists to be of sound mind.

GREECE VERSUS ALBANIA IN EDUCATION DISPUTE

THE NATHAN ROAD CAR FATALITY

Evidence Regarding The Brakes

CASE ADJOURNED TILL MONDAY

At the Kowloon Police Court yesterday afternoon, evidence that a speed of over 40 miles an hour at the time of the crash, the car was uncontrollable and a release of the brakes was necessary to regain control, was given by Traffic Sergeant T. McInnis against Mr. A. E. Ainsworth, who was charged with the manslaughter of a Chinese, Ma Ho-fai before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General conducted the case for the Crown, while Mr. H. C. Macnamara, instructed by Mr. J. M. D'Almada Remedios, appeared for the defendant.

Traffic Sergeant T. McInnis, Motor Vehicle Inspector, Kowloon, deposed to finding two skid marks which ended at the refuge island. The east skid mark was 38 feet in length and the west 97 feet in length. They were not parallel all the way and curved to the right.

On February 3, he took the car to Nathan Road and at 80 miles per hour it stopped in 76 feet. The road was dry as it was on February 1. The car, in witness's opinion, should have pulled up in 50 to 55 feet at that speed.

Mr. Macnamara objected to the admissibility of the evidence remarking that it was only a matter of opinion.

At Counsel's request, Mr. Fraser examined the witness as to his experience in traffic matters.

Witness replied he had been in the Traffic Department since June, 1928, and his work had been traffic control, motor vehicle inspection, Hong Kong, and was at present motor vehicle inspector, Kowloon. He had previous experience as a motor mechanic in Scotland. He had previously given opinion evidence in a Magistrate's Court in Hong Kong.

Continuing, witness stated that at 20 miles per hour the car stopped in 31 feet. It should have stopped at between 20' and 25' feet.

At a speed of 30 miles per hour and over the tendency was for the rear of the car to swing left when the brakes were applied. At a speed of over 40 miles per hour the skid became so bad that the car was uncontrollable and the brakes had to be released to regain control of the car, added witness.

The skidding was due to unbalanced brakes and bad adjustment. Witness gave detailed results of another test carried out in Gascoigne Road on April 1.

Mr. Macnamara objected remarking that the defence were not informed of the tests, when they could easily have been.

Re-examined by Mr. Fraser, witness stated that no adjustments to the car had been made.

The hearing was adjourned to Monday afternoon. Defendant is on bail.

Mr. Fraser offered the defence every facility to carry out tests with the car. Mr. Macnamara replied that they would probably accept the kind offer made.

The case was adjourned to Monday afternoon.

MORE VISITORS TO BRITAIN

Jubilee Year Opens With Good Increase

Figures issued for January by the Travel Association show that the Silver Jubilee Year opened with a further increase in the number of visitors to Great Britain.

The total was 7,980, an increase of 767 over January 1934. Business visitors numbered 7,517, a rise of 681. The combined total of holiday and business visitors (15,477) shows an increase of 1,895. The figures for all countries except Russia were higher.

To-day's Short Story

The Vaudeville Doctor

By John Forbes

DRAMATICAL tenor. My friend, like a pal I'm telling you, for a nickel I could buy a carload of dramatical tenors and get ten cents refund back on the empty car."

Max Steigel, the vaudeville doctor, puffed impressively on his cigar and gave Freddie Rogers, tenor, a shrewd glance of appraisal.

"Still," he said presently, "I just been doing some first-class concentration thinking, and a swell idea come to me, same as always."

"You mean you can get me a booking?"

"I mean," said Mr. Steigel, "that if you're willing to do like I'm going to tell you."

"But, don't you want to give me an audition? After all—"

Mr. Rogers, idol in happier days of the Chicago Civic Light Opera Theatrical Association, Inc., betrayed both incredulity and hurt pride that the vaudeville doctor did not care to hear him perform.

"If you say you're a tenor, then I shouldn't believe you're a basso singer," said Mr. Steigel. "Besides, you look like a tenor. In fact, you got that tenor smell. So that's all

NOVEL ARMoured SPEED-BOAT

Range Of 420 Miles At 20 Knots

ABLE TO DO 30 M.P.H.

Mr. Hubert Scott-Paine recently demonstrated at Southampton a high-speed motor-boat, of revolutionary design, with which he intends to set a new fashion in sea travel and introduce a swifter and more vital attacking force into naval warfare.

His plans include a scheme for running a regular ferry service of fast motor-boats from England to various parts of the Continent, including Mediterranean ports.

"Creating new speed records over short distances with motor-boats is spectacular," he said, "but I believe that the public now wants to travel at speed by sea over long distances."

"But these new craft must also play a prominent part in the sea war of the future."

To Fight Smugglers
The motor-boat, which he demonstrated is an armoured vessel, built for the Chinese Maritime Customs. It will be used to fight smugglers and pirates.

Although only 45 ft. long and, with all its equipment, weighing more than 12 tons, it constitutes a powerful weapon of attack.

Sitting in the wheelhouse of the new vessel, as she sped out into Southampton Water at more than 30 miles an hour, Mr. Scott-Paine said:

"You will notice that this wholehouse is stoutly protected with thick armour plating capable of withstanding heavy bombardment." At a word of command steel panels were drawn across the portholes.

The boat's armaments consist of four Lewis guns and rifles for the crew of ten.

The vessel, which is claimed to be unsinkable, is capable of travelling for 420 miles at 20 knots."

East And West Can Meet In Business

Britain And China Need One Another

TRADE FAIR HOPES

THE story of the pioneers of British trade in China is full of interest and romance. Their efforts commenced an era which has given Western civilisation to many places. To-day China figures constantly and prominently in the leading newspapers of the world, and she has provided urgent problems for statesmen, social workers and famous economists. But beyond all else, China offers for every business man with any ambition to extend his connections, the greatest potential market in the world.

This is the age of the question mark. No subject is exempt from criticism and discussion. But there are certain facts beyond question. One is that China is most anxious to develop foreign trade, another is the importance of the facts revealed by a study of geography. You cannot argue as to whether London is situated on the Banks of the Thames; you cannot question the fact that the position of Venice caused it to be the great trading centre of the Middle Ages; nor can you doubt the fact that Hong Kong is one of the largest shipping centres of the world because its geographical position made that inevitable as soon as sea transport became much more rapid and extensive. The use of coal and oil for ship propulsion, and the urge of traders to seek new markets, gave the geographical position of Hong Kong unique importance in the new world conditions created by rapid transport.

Peace-Loving Race
One of the reasons is that the racial characteristics of the British and the Chinese supplement each other in a manner that is as remarkable as it is beneficial. No wise man would dare to say that the characteristics of either race have helped more than the other. You cannot praise sufficient the industry, the cheerfulness and the astonishing ability in commerce of the Chinese residents. Nor must mention be omitted of their respect for law and order, except in the face of starvation or death in other form, there is no race of people more peace-loving.

Anglo-Chinese Co-Operation
The development of Hong Kong into its present important status in the world of commerce might have been delayed, but for the enterprise of the early British traders.

Nature created conditions in Hong Kong so favourable for trading that, as soon as scientific knowledge and Western ideas surged into the Far East, the need for Hong Kong as a port and great trade centre must have changed it from a barren island into a most important centre of commerce.

What are these natural conditions? Amongst others is the valuable and wonderful harbour. The largest vessels in the world can find a safe anchorage in the channel that lies between the Island of Hong Kong and the mainland of China.

World Cargoes

Nowadays, there are always in Hong Kong merchant vessels of many nations, either anchored in the harbour or alongside the wharves. Cargo from all points of the compass is being unloaded for distribution to different parts of China. The products of the interior of China are being placed in the ships to be carried to Europe, America, Australia, South Africa, India, Malaya—in fact to almost any place, which is on the map as a centre of trade. The variety of these products is astonishing to those who have not realised that China is such an enormous country, or that the climatic conditions in different parts permit of the growth of almost every item in the vegetable and animal world. It must be remembered, too, that the mines are providing modern China with the wealth essential for trade. Although tungsten, antimony, and tin are carried away in the ships that voyage out of the harbour of Hong Kong, the mines of China are almost undeveloped in comparison with what the surveys of scientists have revealed lies hidden in the ground, waiting for Western machinery and modern methods to force it to yield up its wealth.

In all of the varying episodes in the history of the world that have passed across the flickering screen of time, there has been nothing so encouraging to those who have faith in the future of humanity as the results, evident in Hong Kong, of Anglo-Chinese co-operation. In the growth of this great trade centre there has been a fusion of the best attributes of both of these races, working in union for one common purpose.

Racial characteristics have been the subject of analysis by many learned men, but we are concerned here only with those that explain the reasons why Hong Kong is unique in its development. Why has it, within a century, changed from an almost unknown island, with only about 500 inhabitants, to one of the largest ports in the world with nearly a million residents?

Queen's Building, Hong Kong, 4th April, 1935.

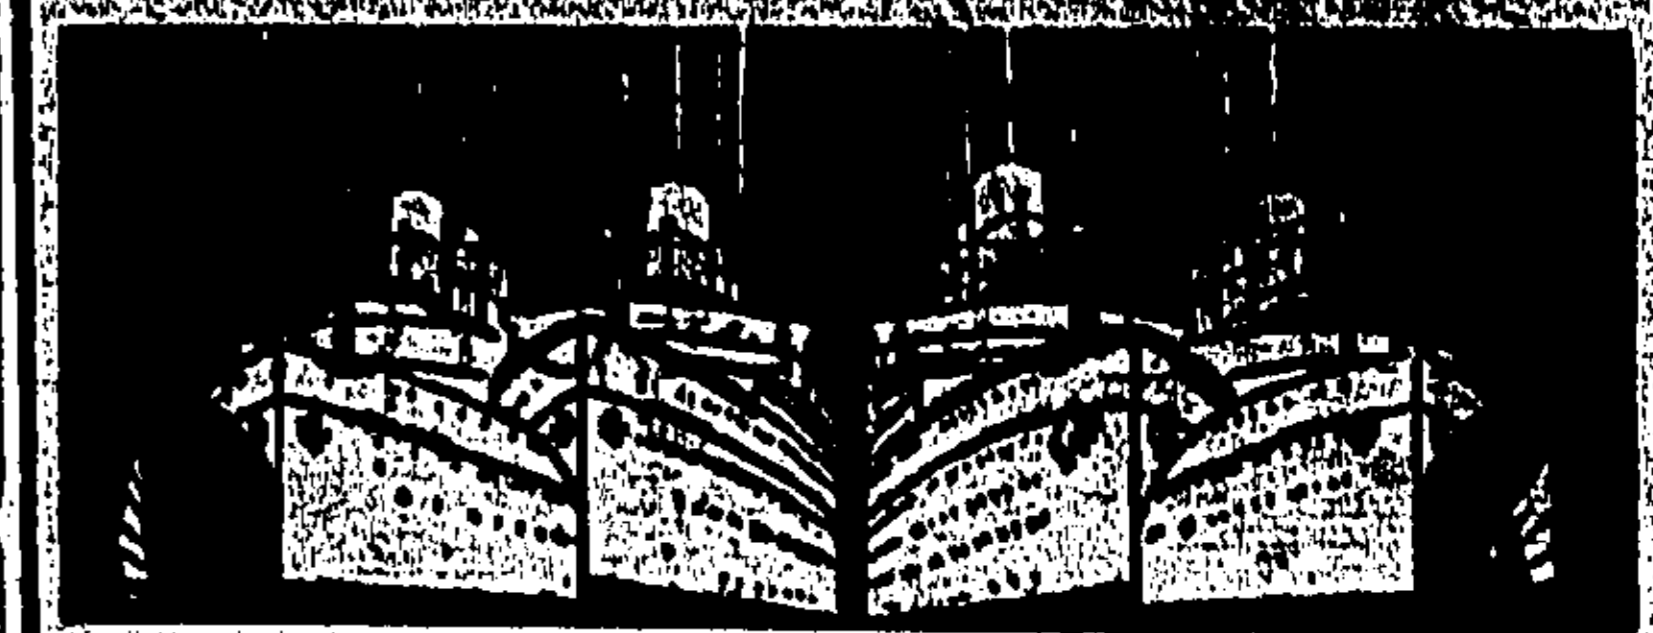

WHERE EAST AND WEST DO MEET

Only in the numerous temples and on the precincts of the Grand Palace of Bangkok is no trace of European atmosphere. The latter is a city in itself, and the nearest possible approach to the Oriental city of a child's imagination. Here is such a jumble of fantastic shapes, of soaring roofs and twirling, porcelain plinths of giant golden monuments, and multi-coloured pagodas, such a concourse of ogres and goblins and other fantasies as one would expect to see in some Luna Park laid out for the use of Royal children alone. But it is not for children. It is for the King.

It will be the subject of discussions in the interior of China for months after it has been held and it must aid in opening up fresh channels for exports which will increase the demand for Western goods. Seeing is believing. The Chinese have a visual memory much more intensely developed than that of any other people. The exhibits will make an impression on their minds that will never fade. Those exhibits will be talked over and over in the homes of the crowds that will see them, and those who purchase the exhibits will be the envy of their fellows. Here is the opportunity to make a remarkable impression on a people that is striving to seek out and adopt Western ideas, and in the Western ideas, which are incredible that the opportunity will be neglected by any business man possessing the enterprise and tenacity of these early British pioneers who brought Hong Kong to its present important position on the Trade Map of the world.

R. Hope (Eton and New College), bow; 2, R. M. de Winter (Winchester and Corpus); 3, E. E. D. Tomlin (Whitgift and University); 4, J. M. Couch-man (Shorborne and Christ Church);
5, J. D. Sturrock (Winchester and Magdalen); 6, V. Sutcliffe (Shrewsbury and Trinity); 7, E. J. Sciorino
(Shrewsbury and University); 8, R. B.
Mynors (Eton and New College); stroke: G. O. F. Bryan (Eton and Worcester) cox.

Bankes Position.
The fact that Bankes was left out does not of course necessarily mean that he will not row in the race.

Mr. Peter Hall, Thomas, the coach, said "We have decided to rest Bankes for a day or two. That is all I can say at the moment." Bankes is the champion oar-breaker of the Oxford crew, his total to date being six of the twelve broken since practice was started. He has been rowing with Fletcher rowlocks, while the rest of the crew, except for one experiment, have been using fixed pins.

More Oars Broken.
Four more oars were broken by the Oxford crew when they were practising in the fixed tub at Goring. J. M. Couchman smashed two, and A. V. Sutcliffe and R. Hope each one.

Oxford tried the boat, used during practice by the Isis crew, which was built in record time for last year's race. The only rowing during their first outing was a half-minute spell, in which Mynors got in 17½ strokes.

Crew Impress.
The crew impressed very much when they had their first trip over the 3½-mile course between Stratford Vicarage and the Nautical College boathouse at Panbourn in the afternoon.

They did paddling, varied by a few bursts of rowing. The crew developed much power, and the boat ran very well.

With a minute's rowing at 32, they completed the course in 20min 13sec. It was an excellent performance, in view of the fact that there was no stream to help the crew.

New Boat Specifications.
The Oxford boat race crew have altered the specifications for their new boat. The experiment with the Isis boat, which was used again at Goring, has shown that it is faster than the boat which was built in January, and which they had been using until recently.

The boat builders at Putney were then given amended instructions.

Light Blues' Outing.
The Cambridge crew had another late outing on March 8. They got afloat at 10 minutes to 6 and arrived back at the boathouse an hour later in moonlight. Mr. Nisbet, the coach, arrived shortly after five and gave tubular instruction to the four stern oarsmen.

Paddling downstream in easy stages the Pike and Eel was reached at six o'clock, and on the way down Long Reach a couple of 10's were called for. Turning at Baitable Locks they prepared to row from Little Bridge to Railway Bridge, a distance of a mile and a quarter.

Good Stoking.
Szilagyi, at stroke, got away at 35 in the first minute, maintained an average of about 38, and finished up at 38.

The time taken was 7min 13sec, which was quite good considering that the coxswain had to take fairly wide corners owing to bad visibility. Conditions were quite calm and the river was deserted.

What Would Happen?
What would happen if a man did break his oar in a boat race?

Firstly he would receive a severe buffet as the man behind swinging forward; then another as the man in front swung back.

He would, therefore, have to do one of two things—jump out, or continue swinging in time with the crew; a tedious business if the accident happened early in the race. The catch in jumping out would be the risk of being decapitated by a blow from another swinging blade.

The Cambridge crew, led by D. Kingford (Uppingham and Pembroke) (bow) (19 3); 2, J. C. Powell (Eton and Trinity) (19 7); 3, D. G. Kingford (Uppingham and Pembroke) (19 11); 4, M. P. Tomlin (Whitgift and University) (19 9); 5, R. B. Mynors (Shorborne and Christ Church) (19 10); 6, V. G. R. Mynors (Shorborne and Christ Church) (19 10); 7, R. B. Mynors (Shorborne and Christ Church) (19 10); 8, R. B. Mynors (Shorborne and Christ Church) (19 10); stroke: G. O. F. Bryan (Eton and Worcester) (19 10); cox: J. M. Couchman (Shorborne and Christ Church) (19 10).

Rogers telephoned from a lobby of the Swanson Theatre building. "He listened for a couple of moments to-day on his way in," the tenor reported. "He didn't say nothing, but he appeared impressed."
"He's liable to discover you any day now," said the vaudeville doctor.
"Two days later, there was another telephone call from the tenor—an excited call.
"Just begin at the end," said the vaudeville doctor.
"I hit a high C," the tenor was saying. "He stopped dead in his tracks and blinked at me. Then he walked up to me. I let on I didn't see or know him. Just kept on with the aria and moving. He waited till I finished. Then he said out his hand."
"He asked me a lot of questions quick. I told him how I was just over from Naples. Told him how I liked Verdi, Puccini, Leoncavallo and Lodi Swanson. He admitted he was Swanson."
"Swan," said the vaudeville doctor. "Only give me the truth."
"He took out a notebook and asked me for my name. I gave him a line just like you told me. Then he closed the notebook and put it in his work coat. Didn't say anything more. Just smiled and waved his hand. Then he was gone."
"Perfect!" said Mr. Stiegel. "Just as I said. He'll have a contract for you in a couple of days. Don't get writer's cramp. And don't forget my cut is 15 per cent."
The vaudeville doctor hung up the telephone receiver. The Rogers looked now came under the head of finished business—all but collected.
Mr. Stiegel turned his attention to framing a classical routine for a vaudeville performer who could play two pianos, a harmonica, bass-drum and cymbals, and balance an Indian club and a pot of flowers on his forehead, all at one and the same time.
There were other weighty matters, so that the days passed swiftly.
When the vaudeville doctor did have further word from Rogers, it came indirectly.
"Mr. Stiegel had picked up his favourite racing and theatrical dailies and was skimming the headlines when his attention was arrested by the name of Freddie Rogers, used in a head-to-head with Swanson's name.
"Freddie Rogers, an employee of the Swanson Theatre building," Mr. Stiegel read, "was arrested at 11 o'clock yesterday morning and locked up in West Forty-seventh street station, awaiting arraignment in West Side Court, charged with assault on Lodi Swanson, noted comedian-producer and owner of the theatre building."
"Rogers," Stiegel established the producer without "provocation" or warning using a dripping floor mop as a weapon. Mr. Swanson escaped serious injury, but his dignity and clothing were badly ruined.
According to the arresting officer, the attack was wholly unjustifiable. In fact, police learned that Mr. Swanson had taken an interest in the vaudeville performer and a moment before the assault had informed him that he was owner of the building and that he was owner of the building.
The vaudeville doctor, however, was not so sure. He was sure that Rogers was a comedian-producer and owner of the theatre building. He was sure that Rogers was a comedian-producer and owner of the theatre building. He was sure that Rogers was a comedian-producer and owner of the theatre building.

ECHO OF GERMAN REVOLUTION

Name Cleared After 15 Years

OFFICER WHO EXECUTED 29 COMMUNIST SAILORS

The desperate days after the war when German fought against German in the streets of Berlin, Munich, and the Ruhr have been vividly recalled by a legal case that has just been settled in a Berlin court.

In March, 1919, Lieutenant Otto Marloh, commanding a force of 40 soldiers, ordered the summary execution of 29 Communist sailors whom he encountered leading a mob of revolutionaries along the Franzoeskastrasse, in Berlin.

Although Lieut. Marloh's stern action was justifiable under the code of martial law which then prevailed, it was generally considered that he had gone beyond the bounds of necessity. He was to have been tried by a military court, but on June 1 he escaped from Berlin to Lake Constance with the help of forged identity papers. The following September he was discovered in Leipzig and arrested. A military court sentenced him to three months' detention in a fortress for desertion and forgery.

After fifteen years' waiting, Lieut. Marloh has now succeeded in clearing his name of the stigma of desertion and forgery. He has been able to satisfy the court that his flight from Berlin, in 1919, was prompted in secret by the Reichswehr Ministry, which was anxious to avoid the disturbance that Lieut. Marloh's trial might cause. The Reichswehr Ministry, it seems, even went so far as to supply Lieut. Marloh with false identity papers.

MACHINERY FOR CANTON BREWERY

Installation To Be Rushed

Canton, To-day.
The machinery ordered abroad for the beer brewing department of the drinking liquid factory at Saichuen was conveyed to Canton from Hong Kong yesterday, according to the Reconstruction Department.

It is learned that the factory is now being rushed to completion. Installation of the machinery will probably be started next month when the whole factory is completed.—Central Press.

FOOD PRODUCTION IN CANTON

Steps For Increase To Be Taken

Canton, To-day.
In view of insufficiency of food-stuffs for consumption in this province, the Provincial Food Control Board has recently mapped out a programme for increase of food production.

According to the programme, four steps will be taken. The first is to enlarge the area of farm fields by construction of works on a large scale for irrigation and drainage; second, to reform the present system of irrigation and drainage; third, to plant choice grain seeds; and fourth, to establish factories for manufacturing a low price fertilizer.—Central Press.

CABINET MEETING CALLED FOR MONDAY

Both Sir John Simon and Mr. Eden will attend a Cabinet meeting on Monday, at which it is anticipated their reports will be presented and considered.

A Government statement on the results of the visits will be made in the House of Commons on Tuesday by Sir John Simon, and it is awaited with exceptional interest in view of the fact that Sir John and Mr. Eden will leave on the following day for the Anglo-French-Italian conference at Stresa. This conference was fixed for next Thursday at the tripartite meeting in Paris, which was held before the British Ministers set off on their mission, and which formally emphasised the complete unity of purpose of the French, Italian, and British Governments.

From Stresa the Ministers will proceed to Geneva where a special League Council meeting to consider Germany's rearmament decision will take place a week on Monday.—British Wireless Service.

STRANGE CAREER REVEALED

Old "Paper Jack's" Secrets

WAR-TIME WORK TOLD AT INQUEST

It was revealed at the Croydon inquest on "Paper Jack," a well-known local character who wore nothing but old newspapers tied round him with string, and slept in the open air or sheds, that he was the well-educated son of a prosperous London business man; was employed by the War Office during the war in decoding Secret Service documents and as a surveyor helped to map a portion of the Brighton Railway.

His name was Alfred Ellis Preece, and he was aged 59, though his rugged, grey-bearded face and long flowing hair suggested a greater age. He was knocked down and killed by a motor-car last month.

Arthur John Stuart Preece, a wine merchant's representative, whose address was written down and handed to the coroner, said he believed the deceased to be his brother, whom he had not seen for at least 15 years. He continued:

"My brother was trained as a land surveyor. For a long time he had had no occupation at all so far as I know. During the war he was decoding telegrams. He was married, but I understand the marriage was annulled. There were no children."

The jury returned a verdict that Preece died by misadventure, and added that the lighting in that part of the road where the accident happened should be improved.

GOVERNMENT APPOINTMENTS ARE ANNOUNCED

MR. WATSON'S RE-ELECTION
The appointment of Mr. Maurice Murray Watson to be a member of the Medical Board for a further term of three years, is gazetted with effect from March 5, 1935.

His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to recognise, provisionally, and pending instructions from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, Mr. Porphyrio Maria Nolasco da Silva as in charge of the Consulate for Portugal in Hong Kong.

It is notified that during the absence on leave of Mr. M. J. Quist, Consul-General for the Netherlands in Hong Kong, Mr. G. M. Byvanek will be in charge of the Netherlands-Consulate-General.

AGE NOT REGARDED IN MITIGATION

Age is not spared in North China. A sixty-year-old Chinese, Pui Chang-nian, found guilty of robbing villagers, was executed last week by a firing squad at the Haisowangchuang execution field.
